Tracing the progress of mankind would be incomplete without emphasis being placed on Education.

In our own small world educational progress means to us the advancement of Wake Forest College and its interests. In all the history of Wake Forest one man stands out not only as a scholar, teacher and Christian gentleman, but one whose name brings to mind the widening scope and rapid growth of our college.

In recognition of his work in forwarding the interests of Wake Forest College and as a mark of our respect and esteem, we dedicate this,

The 1935 Howler to

FORE WORD

The Century of Progress Exposition, recently ended in Chicago, was not made possible in one century. Many centuries of human struggle and achievement preceded the last ten decades, each of which made its contribution to modern science and development. Even in such an exposition, taking many years, hundreds of master minds and thousands of men to create, the task of portraying progress was a tremendous undertaking. It has also been a task in the limited pages of The Howler to present a brief picture of progress. But such was the editor's endeavor and this volume of The Howler is presented with the hope that it will forever keep PROGRESS in the minds of the Class of 1935.

Through the ages scholars have believed that the ancient Egyptians were in possession of mathematical and mechanical principles. This belief is grounded only in the remains of Egyptian civilization. Ramases II, who reigned in Egypt from 1345 to 1285 B.C., is shown at the right

At the top is one of the Sphinxes of the tombs of the kings, and the Sphinx at the left is the one associated with the pyramids. The three caricatures in the center represent men who through the centuries have been concerned with Egyptian learning: a monk, an old scientist, and a British explorer.

Man in his struggle for more comfort discovered the rudiments of mechanical power. Archimedes (287-212 B.C.), with his lever and pulley principle, made possible the glory of Greek architecture. His discovery tended to eliminate mass labor, which is represented in the Egyptian slaves shown at the left. This progress has continued, culminating in this age of mechanical advantage, known as the "Machine Age."

Senior Class History

THE Class of '35 has been a part of Wake Forest College during a period of its history characterized by trials and hardships, but a period in which the institution has made extraordinary progress. There have been significant physical changes on the campus as well as those that are less tangible. In the latter developments our class has taken an active part. Recently we have happily witnessed what we hope will be the permanent abolition of certain undesirable forms of hazing on this campus. By aiding in the publication of a complete history of Wake Forest we are making a contribution of unquestionable value.

Let us look hurriedly over the field which we have traversed since our arrival at Wake Forest in 1931. As Freshmen we were not lacking in courage or numbers, but of our knowledge of the ways of the world we will not boast. As Sophomores we felt our position on the campus more firmly established, and did our best to convince all freshmen that they must respect our newly acquired crown of sophomorehood. Why a sophomore should think a summer's vacation should change him into a super-being one cannot say, yet the feeling seems to prevail, and we were not exceptions. Perhaps we unjustly condemn the Class of '35, for did they not win the state football championship as Freshmen and place eight men on the Varsity the following year.

When the class reassembled as Juniors it found that the personnel of the group was greatly changed. Many of our fellows had dropped out because of adverse financial conditions and numerous other reasons. In many of their places were new men who had come to us from other institutions.

During the Junior year we began to apply ourselves more earnestly to the task of making some advancement toward the realm of intellectualism. Prior to this time we had scarcely felt the desire nor seen the need for intensive study. By this time we had realized that there is more to college than the tormenting of freshmen and that we must try to get ahead in the world.

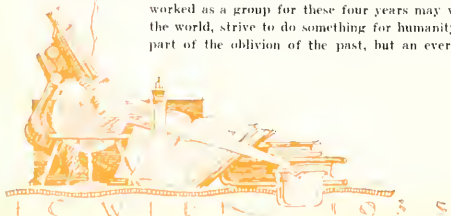

Through the first three years of college life one looks forward to the time when he shall be able to glory in seniorhood. Once this stage was reached by the Class of '35 there was noted a conspicuous lack of the anticipated glory. In reality it seems that the senior year with its added duties and difficulties is much less enjoyable than earlier years.

The Class of '35 was further depleted in numbers this year by having many of its original members enter the Professional Schools, where they are destined to spend many additional weary hours. Still others have fallen by the way side because of scholastic difficulties until the group which we now have is but a skeleton of the class that entered Wake Forest in 1931; nevertheless, we feel that this process of continual elimination has left a most desirable group.

We would like to recognize individually the men who have so ably led our Class as officers and in campus activities, however, a record of individual accomplishments can be found elsewhere in this Publication.

Wake Forest has wrought a transformation in the Class of '35. It has changed us from a group of irresponsible, airy-minded freshmen to men of fixed character, equipped to face what the future may reveal to us. One cannot speak dogmatically concerning the future, however, of this we are convinced: should any degree of success be ours, to Wake Forest goes the praise; should we fall short of our goal the blame must rest on our failure to grasp the opportunities placed before us. Feeble achievements here can be only stepping stones toward ideals more noble and accomplishments more beneficial to mankind. Just as we have worked as a group for these four years may we as integral parts of that much larger group, the world, strive to do something for humanity that will make the history of this Class not a part of the oblivion of the past, but an ever-living, vibrant present.

Will

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
COUNTY OF WAKE.

WE, the Senior class of nineteen hundred and thirty-five, being of sound mind and healthy body do hereby file this our last will and testament, declaring all others heretofore filed to be null and void.

Item I. To our parents and others who have made it possible for us to attend this institution, we leave our undying gratitude, hoping that in some way it shall be a recompense for their sacrifices.

Item II. To our Alma Mater we leave our sincerest wishes and desires that she will ever grow and never forget those principles for which she was founded.

Item III. To the faculty we leave all knowledge and information which they have gained from our recitations, semester papers and examination papers. This information is to be used in instructing Wake Forest's later generations.

Item IV. We bequeath to the incoming Senior class the dignity which has for so long a time been characteristic of that august body.

Item V. To the incoming Junior class we bequeath our psychology and philosophy notes hoping that they will find them useful in studying for their quizzes.

Item VI. We will to the incoming Sophomore class the prerogative of its name—a wise fool, hoping that the knowledge which they think they have gained will be good soil for seeds yet to be sown.

Item VII. To the incoming Freshman class we bequeath our knowledge of Wake Forest, its traditions and its spirit; on the condition that the Freshmen will do their best to maintain them throughout their lives here.

Item VIII. To the Medical classes we will our desire for longer week-ends.

Item IX. To the Law classes we will our afternoon classes so that the law students shall be able to sleep late every morning.

Item X. To the Editors of all the college publications we bequeath our deepest sympathy.

Item XI. To the coaching staff we bequeath all material for football, basketball, baseball and track which may be found in the student body.

Item XII. To the literary societies we bequeath our stentorian voices.

Item XIII. To the Band, Glee Club and Orchestra we leave our worship of Sousa, Fred Waring and Guy Lombardo.

Item XIV. To all others whom we have failed to mention in this our last will and testament we bequeath the rest of our attributes to be used as they see fit.

In witness whereof we, the class of '35, affix our seal and signature. In the year of our Lord, March 11, 1935.

THE CLASS OF '35.

By the Testator.

Class of 1935 Prophecy

While through the graves of life we wander
O'er its flowery books we ponder,
Reading buds of beauty
Dreaming e'er of love and duty.

LIKE ancient bards we stand upon the shores of time peering into a maize of misty future. The three fatalistic sisters scoop the sand from beneath our feet to replenish our glasses running low. Some may chance to get a pearl or even bits of drifted gold, but others just plain dirt and pebbles. Never scorn that which is mine or his, and we must not yearn for yours. The Great Captain judges not that which fills your timepiece, but by how you sift the sand.

Don't blame your prophet for the above musings—a philosophy thesis is liable to result in any type of mental wandering. It must be Socrates' oracle that pulls this pen against my will. These pages seem to fill and yet my mind stands still.

Dr. Furman Covington, Pres.
Wake Forest College
Wake Forest, N. C.

Dear, Dr. Covington:

Please accept my apology for the formal heading of this letter, but the influence of the English department of our Alma Mater is still with me.

I became interested in the whereabouts and occupations of our classmates several years ago, and as a result I began collecting material concerning them as a sort of hobby. At last the work is complete, and I am passing it on to you feeling that it will prove of no little interest.

B. I. Tart, after receiving his M.D. degree, is back with Schmaltz's Beefeteria as master meat chopper. He said he took medicine for the fun of it.

Paul Bagby gave up the idea of becoming a druggist. He is now leading what is conceded to be the hottest jazz band this side of Harlem. Incidentally he married his peroxidized tooth singer four years ago.

Bob Battle is in the movies. Not having an ear spread sufficient to warrant his playing the part of a Clark Gable, he is doubling for Frankenstein while that celebrity is on his regular job of scaring five-year-olds.

"Goof" Davis, the man with the winning personality of college days, is now a noted psychologist. He is specializing in the development of personality, and is conducting classes for those in need of this training.

"Tommy" Gilliam volunteered himself as the subject for an experimental operation under Dr. "Wink" Patton, who is a gland specialist. The operation was successful, and "Tommy" is now an eight foot giant exhibiting with The Jingling Brothers Circus.

Neil Pickard's good looks won him a contract as an artist's model. He is posing for cartoons in Jestquire.

The following men, dissatisfied with the teachers' salaries paid them, founded Utopian University located on the outskirts of a famous nudist colony: Bill Brickhouse, president and professor of animal psychology; F. D. Hemphill, bought a violin and is head of the music department; Nat Holton, associate professor of public speaking. C. P. Killough, has learned through exhaustive tests that a college degree, when boiled, has little nutritional value. Jesse Highsmith, has a necktie on every student in Utopian College. He is professor of home economics and is preparing potential henpecked husbands for the future. J. G. Blackburn, debate coach, was struck dumb in the middle of a high powered speech in defence of hazing and illicit hair cutting. Paul Hendricks, became absent minded enough to rate a full professorship. He is conducting a course in the development of memory. Pat Swan, head coach. Frank Clark, professor of philosophy and authority on Plato. M. H. Clayton, professor of mathematics. He has simplified Einstein's theory to the extent that it is required in all high schools. David Dowd, professor of history; his book entitled "The Perseverance of Henry the Eighth" has sold 2 million copies. Marion Chetty, professor of agriculture, RFD, A. B. Dick Friedman, professor of English. He has just published an English textbook which high school students can understand. Mack Ange, professor of government. He gave up his study of mathematics, and became another letter in the governmental alphabetic soup. Powell Bristol, registrar. Catalogs concerning Clopian University may be secured by writing him. He says, however, that information concerning the adjacent nudist colony should be addressed to that organization, as it is theoretically a separate institution.

Junius Martin is president of the American Bar Association—he advocates bigger and better ten cent toddies in every corner bar.

Millard Brown, George Griffin, John Lambert, Jim Wilder, J. D. Williams, and T. K. Woody have all become missionaries to the Eskimos. They run a pawn shop and trading post on the side. A recent letter from Woody states that it's a good graft.

Tom Greenwood and Charles U. Harris have at last gained the heights in press and political rings. Greenwood still presses the electrical button, and Harris rings loud and long.

Carl Ousley on his return from a trip to the Holy Land stopped in at Monte Carlo for the purpose of delivering a sermon on the evils of gambling. Instead of delivering his sermon he played a dollar and won. He now has a first mortgage on the iniquity infested place.

Mrs. Mareus Floyd, who before her marriage was Miss Willie Godfrey, is now a welfare worker in New York City.

S. A. O'Brian is owner of the Black and Blue Canary Ranch. He has developed a sea going canary that eats fish and whistles "Anchors Aweigh."

"Pal" Wilder, Carey Josey, R. O. Poplin, Jr., have formed a modern triumvirate. They are in complete control of the government of Manteo.

Surely you remember our friend Ed Beale. He is now a sensational criminologist in the University of Chicago. His latest book "The Sleepers Must Pay" is a unique creation of detective art. By the way, this masterpiece is dedicated to E. B. Earnshaw.

F. H. Eason is a noted lecturer and reformer. He has made a special study of mental telepathy and radioactivity. He is an authority in this type of work. If you don't believe it, read his latest criticism of his work.

High tribute should be paid to three of our illustrious brothers: C. I. Harris for the invention of a stipulating machine which has been a great help to students in the drawing of biological specimens. Francis Paschal for the invention of erib-proof blinkers which are worn by students in most of the larger universities. They have practically wiped out cheating.

Bill Wyatt for his perfection of a pocket fluoroscope used in the detection of cigarettes and other articles concealed on criminals.

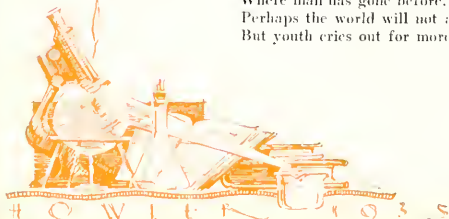

What! No thesis. Yes, no thesis, and that oracle has been playing pranks again.

Editor's Note—(Jake the Prophet hasn't been seen since he was so ill used by the gods of Socrates in creating the lines above).

Senior Class Poem

The fragrance of a thousand cream magnolia buds
Still lingers in our minds.
The stream of truth, begun when earth began, still floods
Our souls, our hope unbinds,
Enkindles both our zeal and zest to go beyond
Where man has gone before.
Perhaps the world will not as we now dream respond,
But youth cries out for more.

FALK S. JOHNSON.

History of the Junior Class

A COLLEGE freshman! An all-important figure. Clothed in a bright colored sweater, on the bosom of which rested a pledge button of some kind; flowing tie; baggy plus-fours; able, because of his peculiar position in life, to get by with anything short of murder, and willing to take advantage of this position—this was the picture we had as we, then the largest freshman class in the history of Wake Forest College, went through the registration mill. Our alert minds were not long, however, in arriving at the conclusion that we were to be the Deacon part of the Demon Deacon combination. We were required to wear very modest clothes and behave as if our tender vocal organs were capable of generating only the most necessary phrases such as "How-dee-do" and "pass the beans, please." To say we were put in our rightful lowly place is to express it but mildly.

Our leaders for that memorable year were: President, Clyde Hatcher; Vice President, Sam Smith; Secretary, Milton Dement; and Treasurer, Thurman Ross. Although we could claim no state championships, all of our teams made better-than-average records.

We probably learned more about the "bull session" and other campus courses than we did about our regular academic subjects. However, a startling number of us passed, and were duly rated as sophomores.

After a year which seemed to us to be highly active, it is quite natural that our sophomore year, spent in diligent pursuit of our courses and otherwise, be quite uneventful. By "diligent pursuit of our courses" I mean to imply that our professors outdid themselves in their desire to teach us more than we could possibly learn in the space of one year. The "otherwise" has been censored by the Publication Board.

We elected to serve as our Sophomore class officers the following men: President, Sam Smith; Vice President, Earl Forbes; Secretary, W. H. McDaniel; Treasurer, John Peacock; and Historian, John Peeler. Of course we had our share of men in athletics, publications, forensics, etc.

It was during this year that the pyromaniae (fire-bug, to you was rampant. We were terrified time and again by the antics of this unknown marauder, but as we look backward we are sceptical as to whether more harm than good was done by the fiend.

As members of the Junior class we can boast that during our three years at Wake Forest, we have witnessed more physical changes in the institution than has any class before us. We have observed a building program expansive enough to be envied by any and every school in the state. New Medical, Administration, and Gymnasium buildings are the outstanding accomplishments along this line, while much time and money is being spent even now for the beautification and general improvement of the campus. Our chief eye-witnesses are, as listed above, Dent Weatherman, Wilbur Vaught, W. J. Powell, and Hunter Moricle.

As we stand on the verge of becoming seniors (maybe, possibly, perhaps, we hope), we are all thinking seriously of ending our college careers now before we become members of the moran group; for the further we progress, the less we know. At least I am sure we will all admit that we knew far more as freshmen. (Here we are boasting, in an indirect way, of how broadened we are becoming.) However, we will stick it out. In fact, we even aspire to be of some service to our dear old Alma Mater before we are precipitated into the alumni's throng.

Class Historian.

Sophomore Class History

SINCE few, if any, people ever read class histories, I'm just going to ramble along, writing enough to fill up this space and then quit, but not until I have left out a lot of bull about class meetings and a lot of sentimentalism that seems inevitable in class histories.

I might as well get the bragging over with now. Last year ours was the largest freshman class in Wake Forest history, so they tell us. This year ours is the largest sophomore class in said history. As freshmen we won the state freshman football championship with the greatest of ease. Then last season it seemed as though our football boys practically took over the varsity squad. Why, Bert Shore, our popular president, was an all-state end, Walt Kitchin, the college president's son, took over the quarterback position and was the best all-round player in the backfield. Other than these were the Edens boys, Boobie Bullard, Dallas Morris, Tony Stern, Porter Sheppard, Joe Swann, Jug Allen, Jim Dodson, and others.

In scholastic activities we're very good, if you please. We have our share on the honor roll each time, several among us being all "A" students. Members of our class practically run the Eta and Phi literary societies. Several of our men, Al Martin and Reade Pickler, are on Wake Forest's outstanding debate squad. We're good musicians; just take a look at the band, the orchestra, and the glee club. Members of our class have been very active in publications work. Over half of next year's publications heads are thirty-sevensers. I won't name them, for at the time of this scribbling the elections haven't been held yet. Many of us hold important places as assistants in the various departments of study on the campus. Joe Felks is Secretary-Treasurer of the whole student body this year and he's one of us thirty-sevensers. Two of our number bought and are running a down town drug store. This is a hint of our business ability, besides the profit made in various and sundry ways, such as school colors, hair insurance, and bath tickets sold to the gullible freshmen. Aside from business and scholastic brilliance, we're brilliant in politics, as some of the aforementioned offices we hold suggest. In fact, everyone of the sophomore officers come from our number. We merit an office, then get it by politicking, and hold it down in a royal fashion with our numerous and apt abilities. I could say more of this, but it would be telling. Don't think I'm bragging about our class; I'm just telling you, whoever you are.

There's one job we did too well, I'm afraid. It was that of holding down the freshmen. In our kinetic eagerness to keep the lowly freshmen under foot we lost out, and I believe to the detriment of our school spirit. I won't commit myself as to what I think of hazing, but I, and anyone else, can observe the actions of freshmen easily enough. Before the officials, etc., took drastic actions to stop the frosh from getting nude deals (this is a pun) on their scalps via the scissors of the so-called barbarians, the haircutters, many of which were in our group, the freshman was probably a little too terrified, but he was where he should have been. Now that hair-cutting and rat courts have been done away with, the freshman seems to have fallen back into his old high-school-senior ways. He hardly speaks unless he knows you very well, or unless you yell at him, or unless he's a politician. In a sense the relation between the upperclassmen and the freshman is the thing that controls school spirit. But this is not history, I've started to editorialize or something.

In closing I won't get mushy about school spirit or what we thirty-sevensers are going to do. But if you've gotten along this far, all I've got to day is just watch our dust or watch us bite the dust; we do either most royally.

Poem

'Tis noontime now, the day's half done;
The thread of college life's half spun
But let's pause not to remorse
Or make amends for things amiss,
Instead, march on with weary feet
That tread to the tune of the heart's fast beat,
Which in solemn sorrow mourns for those
Whom fate has called to sweet repose.

March onward, men! the goal is near
For men of steel awaits a cheer
And when the sun in glory sets
We'll have no tears or regrets.
Instead, our song of victory
We'll shout, with rousing voice to thee—
To Thee, our Alma Mater.

History of Freshman Class

THE good ship "38," composed entirely of Freshmen, embarked on many perilous voyages during the past year. The nautical log shows that many distant shores were touched and many harrowing experiences occurred as well as many pleasant ones.

The officers of the crew were: Commander, Beamer Barnes; First Mate, "Pinky" Farmer; Second Mate, Kimball Griffin; and Third Mate, R. U. Hicks. These men have performed their duties efficiently and have steered the ship safely to the home port.

On one trip the crew was humiliated every time it set foot on dry land by members of the good ships, "33," "36," and "37." These hearties forced the Gobs on "38" to put on an act for the merriment of all concerned. "Buttoning" was the name given it and consisted of the Frosh squatting towards terra firma and hoisting the fingers towards the sky. (A very enjoyable time was had by all.)

On another voyage terrific storms were encountered, which blew furiously. The Gobs retreated to the seclusion of their state rooms, but instead of slackening the wind blew swifter. Many Freshmen were literally hurled from their bunks and, "Believe it or not" when the nightmare was over, quite a number of the first year men had been frightened so terrifically that in desperation they had pulled all of the hair from their noble domes. The storm, however, subsided and the "Good Ship" steamed onward, unhampered by further tempests.

The crew, in leisure moments, engaged in deck sports. The foremost were football, basketball and baseball is being looked to in eager anticipation. Teams from other ships, harbored in the haven of higher learning invaded our vessel and we, theirs.

In football, our opponents generally walked off with the spoils of victory, but nevertheless we are fortunate to have had an opportunity for the grounding of fundamentals and are prepared for bigger and better things next year. In this game, Bryan, Dale, Younts, Dowling, Johnson, Glass and others showed to good advantage.

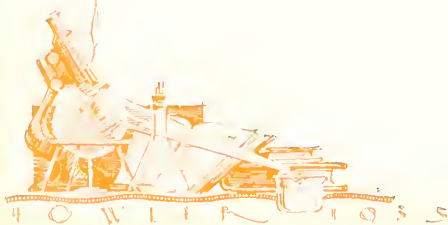

Basketball proved to be equally as disastrous as the first venture in the early stages of the season. However, with constant practice and determination, the boys were tearing down the home stretch with a fine display of cage generalship and strategy. The luminaries in this branch of endeavor were Smith, Aderholt, Stainback, Byrd and Barnes.

As previously stated, baseball prospects are exceedingly bright and the crew should hoist them far and wide. All indications point to a classy pitching corps with a smooth functioning infield. These two factors should combine to make an unusually strong aggregation.

Quite a few members of the crew entered into Extra-Curricular activities. Many enrolled on the good ship "38" joined with those of other ships to engage in public speaking, journalistic work, dramatics, etc. Also, at the inspection which took place every six weeks, the Frosh rated well. Their superior knowledge of naval tactics stood them in good stead.

All we, the crew of dear old "38" have to say in farewell is that we have become endeared to our home harbor, Wake Forest. We want to rank at the top of that imposing list of stately crafts that have journeyed from her to the high seas. We are appreciative to all who have rendered us aid in time of need. As brother to brother, "Bon Voyage!"

History of Medical Class

TIME is fleeting! Seems but yesterday that we entered as an ambitious assortment of boys; hopeful, composed, confident—before long, bewildered. Little did we realize what a great transition it was to emerge from the academic school and enter upon the preparation for the medical profession.

The old building, through whose portals passed men who are worthy of our esteem and admiration, was augmented by the new building, which was erected in memory of the late William Amos Johnson, M.D. Therefore, we had the first privilege of enjoying the advantages offered by the new building, being removed from the well-known "owl's roost" in the old building.

Our first year presented many variable experiences. Never shall the first recitation period in Anatomy be forgotten, for there was a general tachycardia of the entire class upon the first sound of Major Vann's voice. No one knows except the members of our class and our predecessors of the agony and anguish that we experienced. However, by earnest effort, hard work, and burning of midnight oil, we successfully passed the first milestone.

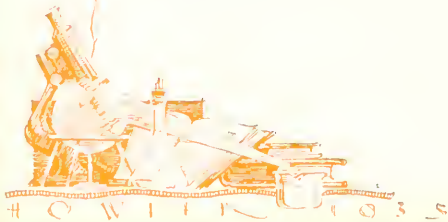

As our sophomore year was ushered in, some misgivings were felt, for out of the thirty-five who had begun the preceding year, only thirty returned, and since the beginning of the year four more have discontinued for various reasons, which leaves a graduating class of twenty-six. Our second year, taking everything into consideration, has been equally as hard as the first, but surely it has been much more interesting.

We realize that our success and achievements have been due largely to the capable leadership of our esteemed faculty. We cannot praise too highly nor attribute too much credit to those who have given unreservedly of their time, untiring efforts, and cooperation in every respect. We are hoping that our labors, our aims, our ideals will materialize in greater achievements, and it is with this idea that we have pushed forward each day, and say with the poet:

"The heights of great men reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight
But they, while their companions slept
Were toiling upward in the night."

But we are not through yet; we have not finished the course. We must remember that we have years of study and toil before us, and as we depart from here, each man going to the school of his choice, let us, as did Alexander the Great, seek new worlds to conquer.

History of the Law Class

IT was in September, 1930 that the Class of Thirty-five made its debut on the campus at Wake Forest College. The members of the class were no exception to the general rule that all freshmen are "green." Some drifted along the path of least resistance during their pre-law days, while others took their preparation for their chosen profession seriously from the beginning—a wise policy, to be sure. After two years of preliminary training, this group of would-be lawyers, the Class of Thirty-five applied for admission to the Law School. The majority of the class had completed satisfactorily the entrance requirements and therefore were admitted.

The most important part of college life as far as the Law Class of Thirty-five is concerned began early one September morning in the year 1932, when Dr. Needham Y. Gulley, venerable Dean of the Law School, presented to the class one of the greatest law writers of all time, Sir William Blackstone, and his immortal Commentaries. Only Dr. Gulley's students can fully appreciate his wonderful ability as a teacher. Legal training is not the only thing one gets from his classes, but there is something else which is of permanent benefit to every man, whether he is a lawyer or not, that Dr. Gulley imparts to his students. Culture is this incidental attribute of his instruction. His province has always been to develop his "young gentlemen" along aesthetic and spiritual lines as well as legally. His great personality and his excellent education, legal and otherwise, have enabled him to accomplish his purpose.

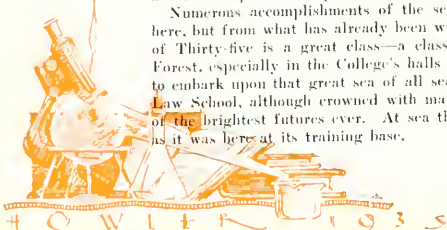

A history of the class of Thirty-five would hardly be complete without mentioning its other instructors. Professor R. B. White, an able lawyer and an experienced teacher, led the class through the maze of Equity, Domestic Relations, Constitutional Law, Code Pleading, and other perplexing branches of the law. With the assistance of Professor E. W. Timberlake, Jr., the class gained a thorough knowledge of the law of Contracts, Torts, Real Property, Personal Property, Municipal Corporations, etc. Professor Timberlake also explained how a lawyer should conduct himself professionally in his course on Legal Ethics. Last but not least in the memory of the Class of Thirty-five is Professor I. B. Lake, junior member of the Faculty of the Law School. In the comparatively short time that he has been connected with the Law School, he has proven himself capable of upholding its high standards, established in the past, and has shown himself fully competent to help erect higher standards for the School in the future. The Class of Thirty-five is extremely fortunate in having had for its instructors the liberal-minded men who compose the present Law Faculty—men whose aims are to place the Law School of Wake Forest College on a par with the best law schools in the country.

Coming to Wake Forest, as it did, in the midst of one of our worst depressions, the members of the Class of Thirty-five have given a remarkable account of themselves. Many of them were forced to do self-help work in order to remain in college. Undaunted by the various handicaps of its several members, the class has been well represented in all of the College's activities. In athletics, as well as other extra-curricular activities, the class has been outstanding. To enumerate the individual achievements of its members would require a much greater amount of space than is usually accorded narratives of this kind.

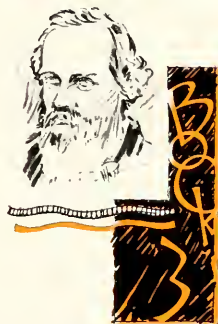

The part played by the Class of Thirty-five in the practice courts of the Law School is of no little historical importance. These courts have been conducted for several years and really form a vital part in the training of the practitioner. The present class owes a great deal to Professor Lake for his untiring efforts to provide a practice court of the highest type. Much of his success in that direction has been due to the splendid cooperation of the Class of Thirty-five.

Numerous accomplishments of the seniors of the Law School might be set out here, but from what has already been written it is not difficult to see that the Class of Thirty-five is a great class—a class which will long be remembered at Wake Forest, especially in the College's halls of legal learning. As the class leaves port to embark upon that great sea of all seas, the Sea of Life, it leaves in its wake a Law School, although crowned with many magnificent past achievements, with one of the brightest futures ever. At sea the Class of Thirty-five will remain as loyal as it was here at its training base.

Historian.

Gutenberg's (1400-1468) invention of the printing press facilitated the spread of scientific learning, which had formerly been in the possession of the limited few. The printed matter had all been turned out by hand, as demonstrated by the monk at the left. Pamphlets began to flood the masses and to instruct them in science, to the extinction of superstition and ignorance.

Said the Bursar: "Don't go over your allowance, don't waste any money, but get out a good HOWLER."

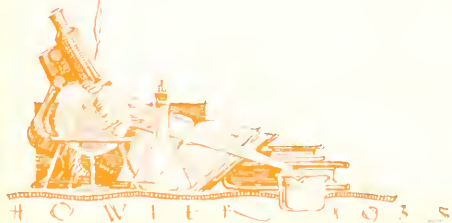

Said students (hundreds of them): "Don't get my picture mixed up, put my girl's picture in, and get out a bigger one than ever."

Said ever so many contractors: "Prices are up 10 per cent."

Said the Business Manager: "Where can I get an ad?"

Said the '35 Editor: "Hot-cha, oh boy, I'm nearly through." (The task has made him a bit balmy.)

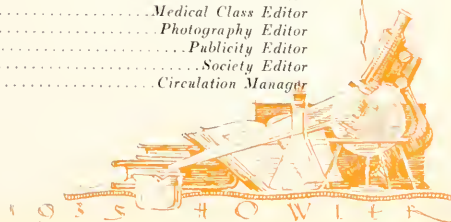

Said next year's Editor: "I'm glad I was elected!" (He's crazy, and he hasn't even started work yet.)

Said the Faculty adviser: "Your job as editor is to get out a magazine which will be a credit to the college, which will encourage our literary minded by printing their "Masterpieces," which will contain enough "light reading matter" to attract the interest of the reader and still will not contain dirty jokes. (impossible!) You also must keep in mind the fact that every issue will be an indicator to the people out in the State as to the morale of the student body."

Said the Business Manager on May 5, 1935: "Whoopce! I've sold an ad."

Said a reader: "Rotten!"

Said another reader: "Good!"

Society Day

THE annual Society Day Program was held on the twentieth of October. The day's program was conceded to be one of the most enjoyable in the history of the school. President Howard Williams and Secretary Halstead Eason labored many hours to arrange the features of the day, which was climaxed by the banquet held at Miss Jo's that evening.

The Enzelean Society carried off honors for the day. Hugh Archie Matthews and George Copple successfully defended the debate title in the morning affair; Mr. Copple came back strong in the evening to capture top honors in the oratorical contest. To further the enjoyment and appreciation of the day our football team defeated the strong Presbyterian College eleven on Gore Field.

Many young maidens from Meredith were the guests of the society members. After all is said and done, the presence of girls on our campus adds color and attraction to any affair. More Society Days and more Ladies.

Founders' Day

THE celebration of the 101st anniversary of Wake Forest College centered entirely around the Philomathesian and Euzelian Literary societies. Activities of the day consisted of a debate, and four orations by members of the two societies. The Euzelian debate team composed of George Copple and H. A. Matthews, bowed in defeat to the victorious Philomathesian team composed of Alfred Martin and Carl Ousley. George Griffin, President, and J. D. Blythe, Secretary, looked on from their high positions while the debaters, running true to form, displayed one of the most spectacular forensic battles of recent history.

Following the debate orators of renown and prestige flew high the colors of their respective societies by delivering in faultless style orations that could be classed among the best. J. Glenn Blackburn, a veteran Philomathesian, Millard Brown, Past President of the Euzelian Society, Howard Williams, Past President of the Philomathesian Society, and Charles U. Harris, several times a representative of his Society, proved themselves worthy of the honor thrust upon them. The four orators were wearing the oratorical colors of their societies for their last time, crowning well their labors in the societies.

THE debate season opened at Wake Forest college this year with brightest prospects. Only one member of last year's championship team failed to return, and a number of Junior College varsity debaters as well as Freshmen were on hand at the beginning of the year. The varsity team is composed of Jack Murchison, George Cottle, Alfred Martin, Carl Ousley, and Hugh Archie Matthews. Close up are Reade Pickler and Hartwell Campbell.

The team is just on the eve of leaving on the most important trip of the season, as this goes to press. This trip will include participation in two tournaments, one in Spartanburg, S. C., and the other in Monte Valls, Alabama. Therefore, it is impossible to say with any degree of completeness what the record will be.

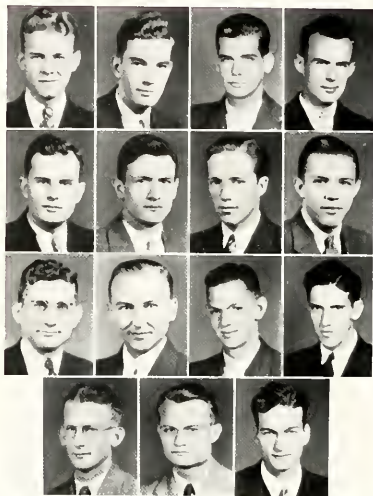

One of the high spots of the debate season was the debate, which was non-decision, with the great team of Bates College, Maine. Students and faculty members who heard this debate declared it to be one of the best they had ever heard. Other teams which the Deacon debaters have met in non-decision competition are: New York University, University of North Carolina, N. C. State College, Juanita College, Campbell Junior, and Asheville State Teacher's College. Teams which the Deacons have defeated include Lemir Rhyne, College of Charleston, West Virginia, Shepherd State Teachers, Western Carolina Teachers, and others.

Baptist Training Union

 OLLIN OWENS.....Vice President JAY ANDERSON.....Pianist

WORK of the Baptist Training Union this year has been characterized by record breaking achievements. Enrollment increased 10 per cent above any previous record, with a total of 247 members. Two new unions were organized, the "A. C. Reid" and the "Charles E. Taylor," making a total of 12 unions, composing the largest general organization of senior unions in the State.

The work was greatly helped by the annual study course, in which 146 awards were given. We were led in the study courses by Miss Winnie Rickett, Miss Margaret Mason, Dr. Carl Townsend, and Dr. A. C. Reid. Socials held in collaboration with the B. Y. P. U. organization of Meredith were expressive of the wonderful spirit that was felt through the entire year. Among the highlights of the year were the extension programs, under the direction of Ollin J. Owens, at Greensboro, Meredith, and other nearby colleges.

Aside from the work in the individual unions, the general assembly was the most interesting phase of the organization. Here, programs were given by representatives from Meredith and Greensboro Colleges, addresses by Dr. H. M. Potat, Dr. D. B. Bryan, Dr. Thurman D. Kitchin, Miss Winnie Rickett, and other visitors. Aside from this each of the unions took part in the programs.

The success of this year's work is attributable in no small measure to the persistent work of the competent director, J. Glenn Blackburn. The pleasing results are a challenge to students in the future.

With the discovery of the pendulum, the thermometer, the telescope, and hydrosstatic balance, Galileo (1564-1642) laid the foundations upon which arose an era of experimentation in the realm of physics. The first attempt with the telescope, unsuccessful though it was, is shown at the left. In the center Galileo is seen employing his telescope, the descendants of which have increased our knowledge of the universe by millions of miles.

Dear Old Wake Forest

Dear old Wake Forest!
Thine is a noble name;
Thine is a glorious fame,
Constant and true,
We give thee of our praise,
Adore thine ancient days,
Sing thee our humble lays,
Mother so dear.

Dear old Wake Forest!
Mystic thy name to cheer;
Be thou our guardian near,
For'er and aye,
We bow before thy shrine,
Thy brow with bays entwined,
All honor now be thine,
Mother today.

Although the 1934 football squad was a disappointment to some, it showed a marked improvement over the 1933 edition and at times played some of the best ball ever played by the Deacons. The '34 squad won three out of ten games—three victories more than last year's team walked off with.

This year's team had excellent material. Last year's state champion freshman squad rose to fill very competently major births on this year's eleven. From this freshman team we have heard a great deal of Shore, Kitchin, Bullard, Wagner, Edens, Sheppard, and Stern on the varsity.

Of last year's varsity Myers, Swan, Hulon, Swing, Martin, Rheinhardt, Gold, Chetty, Hooks and Hood figured prominently on this year's team.

It's a difficult and sometimes a wrath-provoking task to pick the best or the most valuable players, but last fall it is obvious that the three really outstanding Deacon gridderers were Pat Swan, captain of the team and all-state tackle for the third time, Bert Shore, all-state end par excellence, and Walton Kitchin, quarterback, who surprised everyone with his newly acquired faculty for ball-carrying.

The season's schedule was arranged almost as well as a ten game schedule could be arranged. For the first time in several years the Deacons opened with a team other than Carolina or Duke.

The first game was with Guilford College. For once the Deacons had an easy opener. Much speculation was made over the game. Many heralded one of the greatest Deacon eleven's, and, as things went, the Guilford game strengthened their beliefs. On the kick-off Kitchin took the piskin for a beautiful 88-yard jaunt and a touchdown. Then swinging into almost perfect action, the Deacons pruned from one end of the field to the other until the game closed 62 to 0 in their favor. Myers, Stern, Peacock, Morris, Kitchin, Edens, and Gold scored touchdowns in the game. Of course, Guilford wasn't much opposition, but still the Deacons' perfect running, passing, interference, etc., skyrocketed Deacon football hopes.

Carolina, the Deacon's next foe, shivered and betting odds were even. Spirits (football) went high in Wake Forest and a big crowd migrated to Chapel Hill almost sure of cheering their team on to victory. But no, the Deacons became stage-frightened, confused, or something, for Carolina, making and taking the breaks, downed 21 to 0. It was a hard fought and in spots an exciting game. The Tarheels had Pat Swan well-spotted and for the first time in his varsity career Pat failed to play the whole of a game. Bert Shore was without a doubt the best end and one of the best players on the field. Seldom did Carolina gain around his end, and he was in on almost every play.

State came next. The Wolfpack was met under the lights in Raleigh, and without a doubt it was the most thrilling game and the closest game played by any Big Five team in a long time. Both teams played heads-up ball. At the beginning of the fourth quarter the score was tied, 6 to 6. Early in the quarter State made a Wake Forest fumble good for a touchdown but failed to tally the extra point. (Thank goodness!) The score: 12 to 6. After the kickoff State began a march down the field, but it was halted when Perk Rheinhardt intercepted a pass on his fifteen-yard stripe. Kitchin picked up five yards; Edens topped off eight. Then Wake Forest was penalized fifteen yards (as usual). Then action began that kept the 11,000 spectators in a frenzy and on their feet. Kitchin passed to Swing, who caught the ball on wing for a twenty-yard gain. Two passes were broken up. Then a State man interfered with the Wake Forest pass-see and Wake Forest took the ball on State's 45. Once more Kitchin took to the air and served Edens one of his best at twenty yards. Then Edens tipped twenty more to State's five-yard marker. To the air again Kitchin shoved a pass to Shore for a tally. Score: 12 to 12. Edens slapped his foot under the pig-hide for the extra and winning point. One more play and the game ended. Swan probably played his best game. He was all over the playing field like a wet shirt. State lost more territory than she gained around invincible Bert Shore's end. Rogers, Hooks, Hood, Hurrtt, Chetty, Bullard, Rheinhardt, Kitchin, Myers, and Edens played tip-top ball. It was just "one of those games!"

Hopes ran high again. It was thought that the Deacons had regained their equilibrium. But the following Thursday the Deacons lost a very close nip-and-tuck game to Furman at Florence to the baseball tune of 3 to 2.

When the Presbyterian College game came around many of the Deacons were hurt or were recovering from injuries. It was expected to be a tight game and it was—a most hectic game at that. Before the colorful society-day crowd the scrappy P. C. team locked horns with the Deacons. The score: 14 to 6. Martin and Stearn were the Deacon scorers.

For their next contest the Wake Foresters journeyed northward to meet George Washington University, who was rated to skin the visitors. It was a close game and both teams threw up strong offenses. Washington came out on the top side of a 6 to 2 score. Washington had not been scored on during the sea-on until then.

While in the north Wake Forest played Emory and Henry in Virginia, and in a game, rather impoverished of real football, Emory and Henry won, 13 to 0.

Smith Rogers Gold Stearn Hood Davis Terry Edens

R. S. Voss Oregon W. Holton Mumford Hatcher Hasty Bessley

The Blue Devils were up next. Spirit ran high in Wake Forest, where it was felt that the time had come for the Deacons to spank Duke. But Duke won, 27 to 7, in a game full of thrills and spectacular plays. Mr. Wallace Wade, Duke coach, started his second string, but the Deacons with their terrible artistic temperament wanted to play the best instead of the next best, so they marched down to Duke's eleventh yard line and forced Coach Wade to send in his first string. A pass from Kitchin to Warren for 32 yards and a shorter one from Kitchin to Frank Plunk tallied the Deacon's lone score, and Tex Edens with his right chok-knocked looted the extra point. Duke completed no passes. Wake Forest gained 193 yards during the game, while the Blue Devils gained only 165 yards. Both teams made eight first downs, one of Duke's being for a penalty. Wake Forest lost anyway. Kitchin passed, ran, and generated his best in this game and was his team's mainstay in the backfield. Holton, Ballard, Swan, and Wagner played well. Snowe and Myers were both injured and had to be taken from the game.

Richmond evidently caught the Deacons in one of their offest off-days, while the Deacons evidently caught the Richmond Spublers on their best day. With dazzling forward and lateral passes, off-tackle smashes, and broken-field running, Richmond gave the Foresters their worst tanning of the season to the mournful dirge of 39 to 0.

On Thanksgiving Davidson had to be played before the Deacons could eat their turkey. It was the closing game for both teams seasons. The day was drizzly and wet, but it was a fast though slippery battle. The light Davidson eleven with Mackorell leading the fireworks was leading their opposition 13 to 6 in the last few minutes of play. Porter Sheppard with lightning swiftness clipped several neat gains and then streaked over for a touchdown. Score: 13 to 12. The try for the extra point failed, and Davidson enjoyed eating their turkey the most.

With the acquisition of an able line coach, Herman Hickman, former All-American guard of Tennessee University, and several good freshman graders, but with the loss of Pat Swan, Roy Myers, and several other able veterans, the Deacons will have about the same quota of material next fall as they had last fall. Perhaps with the new coach and Coach Jim going into his third year of coaching here, the team will do better and play more consistent ball next season. The team's schedule, however, looks rather tough with Duke and Carolina lined up for its first two games.

Charlie Barrett was manager of last fall's squad and did a good job of it.
The Deacon's coaches were Jim Weaver, Murray Gresson, and Phil Utley.

BASKETBALL

The 1934-35 basketball season was one of the poorest in recent years. Out of fifteen games played only four were won by the Deacon five.

Coach Greason had only three letter men back this year, they being Captain Frank Clark, "Goat" Hatcher, and Jim Brunt. Floyd Patton, the elongated center, didn't return until after the holidays, and Dought Morris, star of last year's freshman team, was ineligible until after Christmas. In looking back over last year's team, the outstanding players were those who graduated. They were "Storck" Swing, Hack Malloy, Joe Mulhern, and Bob Fournery. With that in mind, and also the fact that the freshmen of last year didn't set the woods afire with their record, the '34-'35 season may be pardonable after all.

Wake Forest basketecers opened their campaign for court honors on December 11 by defeating the Rocky Mount "Y" 32-24. The Deacons were paced by Captain Clark who scored 11 points. Goat Hatcher, that stellar guard, was not far behind with 7.

Christmas holidays delayed play until January 4 when Wake Forest fell before the sharpshooters of Raleigh Y. M. C. A. 35 to 26. Hatcher at guard was outstanding for the locals.

Three days later, Duke University exhibited dazzling speed and smart floorwork to defeat the Deacs 47 to 30. Byrd, Deacon center, tickled the meshes for 10 points.

On the following night the to-be state champions, Carolina Phantoms, crushed the Deacons 31-11, in a game featured by the man to man play offered by the former high school mates, Hatcher of Wake Forest, and Stuart Aitken of Carolina.

Wake Forest's next Big Five contest was played in the massive Raleigh Memorial Auditorium against Dr. Ray Sermon's N. C. State five. Again it was State, 52 to 24.

BASKETBALL

Resuming their schedule due to a break caused by exams the luckless Deacs again encountered the White Phantoms of the University, and although the locals displayed a faster attack than had yet been exhibited during the season, they were nosed out to the tune of 31 to 22. Again Goat Hatcher covered the brilliant Aitken limiting him to three points while he scored four himself.

The Demon Deacons met the State Terrors again February 5, and were beaten 39 to 20. Failure to control the tip and inconsistent passing lost the game for the Deacs.

The court men left the following day for a northern trip where they turned back a strong George Washington quint 46 to 25. In the Randolph-Macon gym the Deacs came out on top to the tune of 29-22. They concluded the successful trip with a brilliant victory over Roanoke College.

High Point College and Duke then turned back our Deacons on the 12 and 18 of February.

Coach Greason's quint dumped Davidson into the cellar of the Big Five race with a 29-28 victory played before an enthusiastic crowd in Memorial Auditorium, and was one of the most exciting games played in the Big Five.

In the battle to keep out of the cellar Wake Forest and Davidson met on the latter's court with the Wildcats winning 31 to 24. The teams ended the first half about even, the score being 13-13. Captain Clark, Doight Morris and Jim Brunt led the scoring.

The next night the locals lost to Charlotte "Y" in a heartbreaker 32 to 31. Floyd Patton, Wake Forest's huge center was high scorer with eight points. The Demon Deacons closed their season with a smashing victory over the strong Rocky Mount Y. M. C. A. 46 to 23.

BASEBALL 1933-34

Wake Forest made its debut in Big Five circles known as the "Doubtful Deacons." Our nine had shown much promise in the opening games against opponents who were conceded to be weaker, but the outcome of the Deacons' standing in the Big Five depended upon the veteran Bill Herring and the development of John Gaddy who had pitched winning ball his freshman year but who had not yet stood the test of varsity competition.

Our opening games with Richmond University were rained out, but we started fast and whipped the visiting Michigan State team on the twenty-ninth of March, and repeated against Washington and Lee on the thirty-first.

The real test came on Easter Monday, April 2, when we met our ancient rivals, North Carolina State. Bill Herring turned in a neat performance on the mound, and slashed out a screaming double in the fifth that produced the winning runs. The final score was 4-2 in our favor.

The remainder of the season was a series of ups and downs, the Demon Deacons finally ending the year in third place in the Big Five. Coach John Caddell is to be commended for his excellent coaching ability. He always turns out good teams regardless of the amount and type of material that he has to work with.

heavy-hitting outfielder; Jubie Mitchell, hustling shortstop; and Nig Allen who turned in some fine games behind the plate.

At a meeting late in the year "Milky" Gold was elected captain of the team for next year. Captain Gold did well at his third base post, and his long triple that broke up the ball game between Wake Forest and Hampden-Sidney will long be remembered by his many friends and admirers.

UTLEY
Coach

Track

Won one; lost two. A bald statement of the record for the season does not recount the Deacon's valiant struggle against odds through the three difficult meets. Hampered by inexperience—there were only two letter-men on the squad composed largely of sophomores—the cinder-men balanced their lack of experience by willingness and proved themselves the most promising Wake Forest track team in several seasons.

Visiting Guilford College, the Deacons demonstrated unpredicted strength in topping the home team, 91 to 35. The one-sided score came as a distinctly pleasant surprise to Coach Phyl Utley and the local fans as it marked the first Wake Forest victory over Guilford in a number of years.

Engaging Richmond University at the latter school's stadium, the Old Gold and Black met a crushing defeat, 112½ to 13½. The stellar Spider team, outstanding in southern circles, completely outclassed the locals. The score gives no hint of the bitter resistance exhibited by the Wake Forest youngsters. Out-matched in all but spirit the locals contested every race to the tape, and in sustaining the "keep driving" tradition, favourably impressed the spectators.

Moving on to Washington, the Deacons tangled with Catholic University's flashy representation. The Wake Forest team, overshadowed by several individual Catholic stars, proved to be the better balanced, and resisted doggedly before succumbing to the northern foe, 78 to 48.

The team boasted no individual stars, in the true sense of the word; nor were there any glaring weak nesses. Each event was well managed by at least one consistently good performer. Lacking the individual brilliance of previous performers, the team was better rounded and performed more steadily.

Only one school record was eclipsed during the season when B. G. Leonard's closing spirit in the Guilford meet clipped nine seconds from Curtis Killough's year-old two-mile mark. Justin Drake also surpassed the school mark for the distance, and lost his chance for a record by only a few inches when he was barely nosed out of first place against Richmond University.

Outstanding in the sprints were Stroupe and Russell. Canady, a leading scorer, Russell, and Brunt bore the local colors over the hurdles. The quarter-milers were Powell, Dawson and Davis, Sandrock was the leading half-miler with Irey, Elliott and Evans as running mates. Weatherman, Drake and Carter were the leading milers, while Drake, Leonard, and Killough dominated the two-mile.

Hasty, Taylor and Stroupe heaved the shot and flung the discs. Taylor, Brunt and Bradbury tossed the javelin. Sandrock and Weatherman handled the high jump, with Stroupe, Russell and Canady leaping for distance. Crutchfield and Russell were the outstanding pole vaulters.

FRESHMAN TRACK

The freshmen, competing in but one meet, an unsuccessful encounter with the powerful Richmond team, had little opportunity to demonstrate their ability. Outstanding prospects for next year's varsity include: sprints, Henry Shular and Brady; quarter mile, Ebers; half mile, Crissman and Lawrence; mile, Dudley, Beavers; two mile, Lancheater, Wilborn; weights, Jones, Beavers, Edens, Hicks, Pickler; jumps, Wall, Harris, Henry; pole vault, Wall, Harris, Edens; hurdles, Creech, Irey, Jones.

Tennis—1935

AMONG the minor sports engaged in at Wake Forest, there is none more popular or fascinating than tennis. This school offers no particular inducement for tennis players to come here, nevertheless, enthusiastic followers of the sport are found among the student body, many of whom prove to be rather proficient.

Professor Memory took the initiative in getting this year's team organized. About twenty men answered the call for candidates and elected those now leading the team. Rivers Hanson was chosen captain, Carey Josey, associate captain, and Henry Stroupe, manager. Due to the delay in organization the manager experienced considerable difficulty in arranging the season's schedule.

We find only two members of last year's team with us at present; Fletcher, Hutchins, Davis and Collins were lost through graduation, and Dickinson, unfortunately, is physically unable to play. Hanson has proven to be our most reliable constituent, however, he is heartily supported by the other members of the team. The present ranking shows Hanson to be holding the number one position with Josey, Tuttle, Wilkins, McMillan and Stroupe following in the designated order.

So far this season the Deacons have completed four matches, two with Carolina, one with High Point, and one with Appalachian. Carolina's national champions experienced little difficulty in disposing with our racket wielders, but the matches with High Point and Appalachian were quite different, resulting in victories for Wake Forest.

We as members of the team hope to keep alive an interest in tennis on this campus and preserve for it the place which it should rightfully occupy.

Golf Team

Wake Forest College will be represented in 1935 by the first well organized Golf Team in its history. The team will take part in eight matches: Beginning with the Henderson Country Club, the team will play the University of North Carolina, Hampden-Sidney, Rollins College, N. C. State, the University of Richmond, Davidson, and in the North Carolina Interscholastic Golf Tournament. Since the season is just getting underway it is impossible to estimate the prowess of the team, but with Clyde Hatcher, a golfer of no mean ability, showing the way the team should make an impressive record. Other members of the team are: Carey Josey, H. M. Poterat, Jr., J. F. Paschal, R. L. Wall, and B. B. Williams.

Sir Isaac Newton (1642-1727), English mathematician and natural philosopher, formulated the law of gravitation, which represents one of man's most important discoveries concerning the planet on which he lives. His laws of motion remain unaltered to this day. Newton is seen at the left contemplating the popularized apple tree and at the center he is enlightening a group of his contemporaries in the phenomena of moving bodies.

Acknowledgments

No publication can be the work of one person, either the credit or perhaps the censure must be divided among those who have contributed their effort and time.

The Editor acknowledge with sincere appreciation the coöperation of members of the faculty and student body who have so generously helped in the task of the 1935 HOWLER.

Mention should be made more particularly of Dr. Reid, Mr. E. B. Earnshaw and James Mason, Frank Norris, "Hawk" Eason, Ira Lee Baker, and R. B. Campbell.

The splendid coöperation of the personnel of Charlotte Engraving Company, Siddell's Studio, Edwards & Broughton Company, and especially Herbert Hitch and Andrew Beck is appreciated to the fullest extent.

VISIONS created by the imagination precede the achievement of any really great accomplishment. The ability to weave the threads of imagination into the finished fabric is equally important.

It has been the privilege of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY to cooperate with the staff in creating their vision into material form.

Such cooperation is one of the "visions" which precede the building of a successful business, and is a part of the working policy of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY.

First Stude: What happened to your brother who finished medicine here in '26?

Second Ditto: He's a naval surgeon.

First Stude: My, how they're specializing these days.

The girl who falls in love with movie stars is to us almost as hopeless as the cow that fell in love with the "Bull Durham" advertisement.

Teacher (who has found Tommy out before): Did your father write this essay on "Why I love teacher"?

Tommy: No he didn't; mother stopped him.

Mose: I hear you all got a new boy at yo' house.

Rastus: Yes, sub—sho' is a fine boy, too.

Mose: Do he look like you?

Rastus: Sho' he look like me. (Second thought.) He better.

Mrs. Johnson (learning to drive): Henry, that little mirror up there isn't set right.

Hubby: Isn't it?

Mrs. J.: No, I can't see anything but the car behind.—Annapolis Log.

He rounded a bend at close to forty. A sudden skid and the car overturned. They found themselves sitting together, unhurt, alongside the completely smashed car. He put his arm around her waist, but she drew away.

Son: Hell, Ma! What would it been the use? You can't hit the side of a barn.—S. C. Wampus.

Sister Sue: Did you get any bad marks at school today?

Brother Johnny: Yes, but they are where they don't show.—Annapolis Log.

THE COLONEL BOWS

By A. P. GODWIN, JR.

You've read the musings of the "Gentleman On The Wall"; you've seen in large type of the exploits of "Ye Old Columnist" Charles U. Harris, Jr., and now the Colonel makes his initial bow. Yes suh, the Colonel is mighty happy to see you all; overwhelmed suh!

The Colonel has made a few observations while bowing and scraping to his friends and enemies alike:

Editor Rollins and Business Manager Forbes are to be congratulated on their democratic policies in publishing this book. There has been no recognized politics in its publication, and the fact that ex-Governor O. Max Gardner chose the liberties that you have just admired is evidence of this startling fact. It is to be hoped suh, that this policy will be continued in the next book.

The Progress of Science is the theme of this book. Progress. Have you given any thought to the progress made by Wake Forest College? New buildings have gone up in the place of those which were burned; the athletic field has been improved; new walks have been laid on the campus; and most of all the moral of the entire student body has been strengthened. It seems to me that our distinguished president, Dr. Kitchin, deserves most of the credit for this progress.

And while I'm talking about the feats of the Kitchen Deal due consideration should be made of the work of Prof. (Bull) Memory. He can chew up a cigar faster, talk more, and drain the alumni dryer than any man connected with the College. Prof. Memory, the Colonel bows to you suh.

Our political champion Greenwood hasn't had much to say about the recent Press Convention which was held in Greensboro. Didn't the Wake Forest tactics work Greenwood? Make application to Roberts Jernigan, or Charles Barrett for admission into their Defeated Candidates Club.

A new and different club is rapidly taking form on the campus—the club for C. P.'s. See Jim Mason; he is the Head Mongul. (According to Howard Rollins.)

My Rural Friend Van Landingham, president of the Foggy Bottom Lodge, reports that gronze

shooting on his estate in the Hayes-Barton section of Scotland Neck was not up to par this season. When gunning is better the Colonel will be down to shoot with you Van.

I wonder if the new Student Council officials were elected in time to attend the Convention of Student Government Officials recently held in Raleigh?

Did the gentlemen from Greenville bring glad tidings Charles U.?

To the Executive Committee: Information please. Several students have ask me and I don't know; is it possible for a student who has been expelled to again register at Wake Forest?

Have you noticed the attitude of friendliness existing between the various lodges on the campus this year? It has been par excellence.

And speaking of frats, I am of the opinion that the fraternity movement which rung the curtain down on hair-cutting was the most progressive step taken by any organized body on the campus in a decade. If the fraternities here were encouraged rather than discouraged they could be a fine advertisement to the college.

The advertising section of this book is the largest in many years. Should the credit go to the New Deal or to Business Manager Forbes?

How the devil suh, did the Colonel's name find its way into the membership of the A. K. lodge? Mah honor must be upheld gentlemen; revenge shall be mine!

I wonder why M. C. A. Jernigan isn't juggling the baton any more for the best dance band ever to appear on the Wake Forest campus? . . . Sam, the Colonel shore does enjoy shuffling a foot to your syncopeation. . . .

The next time you see Van Noppen ask him what he thinks of Barney Google. . . . There is a rumor that there is a vacancy on the Old Gold and Black staff. . . . The Chamber of Commerce of the city of Raleigh should have had an entire page in the ad section. . . . Bob Perry didn't advertise either. . . . Ask Dr. Reid what are the essentials to be a MAN. . . . Did you see Taxey's Revue? . . . The Colonel understands that there will be a new Med frat on the campus next year. . . . Wonder why EELsworth Meeter didn't run for the presidency of the Law School? . . . Does your home town "retail" its light and water, or does it have other means of revenue.

Ah claim to be a good judge of entertainment gentlemen, and in mah opinion the fraternity dances this spring have been a credit to the fraternities and to the college. It's a pity that the college wont allow its name to be connected with them. What about that 90 per cent vote of the students to have dances on the campus.

Well, gentlemen, the Colonel has made his bow. You see, Editor Rollins had a page left in his book and he could find nothing to put there; the book is on the press; the publishers are howling for copy, and since Howard promises to meet me at the Bromo Van I hid you all a fond farewell; hoping to see you all again suh.
